Editor Ends Sparrow Trapping, But Another Begins

Editor The Star: I read all your editorials and enjoy them very much, especially the ones concerning "The Book 40."

I notice you have mentioned a sparrow trap you use and I would like to have one as the sparrows are taking over out here. They try to chase the martins away.

I am enclosing a stamped, addressed envelope. Will you please send me the name and address where I can get the traps? Wishing for your continued good health and success. Truly,

LUTHER H. BOLT

Oct. 17, 1972

Route 1, Box 191
McCaill, Ark. 71047

I don't have the manufacturer's name or address. I got this information from Jerry O'Neal, Wilson St., Hope, several years ago and ordered two traps. As a matter of fact, Jerry noted published complaints about sparrows filling up my purple martin boxes and recommended these particular traps as good ones. Which they certainly are.

If Jerry still has the sparrow trap information I'll get it from him and forward it to Mr. Bolt.

If he's lost it, our McCaill letter-writer is welcome to use one of my traps as a pattern by which any amateur carpenter ought to be able to make a copy. It's a simple and effective trap.

I shut down my two traps for the winter Saturday, Oct. 21 with a three-months kill of 231 sparrows. On that last day I had in one of the traps two ordinary sparrows and one white-throated sparrow, which is a singer—so I freed all three and closed out the trapping business for the year.

I suppose these traps are patented. You can't duplicate a patented article and sell it. But there's no law against making one, or having it made, solely for your own use. That should be understood because any claim of patent infringement would involve your editor as having furnished the pattern to go by.

It's not a pleasant business trapping any living creature—especially if you're raising Canada geese as a hobby, as I am in the Back 40, miniature game preserve on S. Walnut St.

The Canada geese are finicky this Autumn weather. And for a while it looked as though I might have to leave the house and move in with them on the Back 40. The deep trench work in the rebuilding of S. Main St. required the contractor to make a gravel fill across my driveway, then the rains came and one car got stuck, blocking the exit for my own car. They finally rescued the other car, and when I backed out it was a fast maneuver, believe me. I had a bad time negotiating this treacherous route for 24 hours, and was on the verge of borrowing The Star's newsboys' tent and joining the wild geese in the Back 40—but the sun came out, the gravel dried—and matters mended.

Rockefeller returns to Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, appearing thin and weak, has returned home after a month in a New York City hospital, where he underwent exploratory surgery and treatment for cancer.

Rockefeller was greeted at the Little Rock airport Monday by his son Winthrop and about 50 friends and employees.

The former governor, his voice barely audible, had his son read a statement which said "that beyond the exploratory operation no further surgery was indicated" but that he was undergoing a chemotherapy program.

Nixon draws crowd

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has drawn the biggest crowd of his campaign as he led a caravan through New York City suburbs and met cheers peppered with occasional heckling.

A few dozen anti-Nixon protesters disrupted his appearance at the nighttime rally capping his campaign swing Monday, but police quickly hustled them away. Nixon paused to watch and resumed his speech with praise for the officers.

State police estimated that 425,000 spectators lined streets of a dozen normally Republican communities in Westchester County as Nixon and wife Pat waved from a limousine in a 50-mile Veterans Day motorcade. Another 15,000-plus were on hand for the rally at the Nassau County Coliseum in Uniondale.

Along the parade route, the pro-Nixon cheers and signs were countered by a sprinkling of chants and placards supporting his Democratic rival, George McGovern.

Bands, balloons, cheerleaders, inflated pink elephants, and an audience waving thousands of flags distributed in advance greeted the President at the coliseum.

In introducing Nixon, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said the crowd represented "America at its best."

Once Nixon began to speak, however, jeers and derisive chants echoed from the section of the upper balconies, then another. Police quietly led away a handful of hecklers.

Then a small, concentrated group of demonstrators, seated behind the platform and close to an upper-tier exit, renewed the disturbance. When police ordered them to leave, a brief scuffle ensued. As officers unlimbered their clubs, newsmen on the floor below saw a flurry of punches exchanged and several young men were heaved toward the exit.

When the outbreak occurred, Nixon halted his speech and stood grinning at the rostrum while the majority of the audience tried to mask the disturbance by shouting his campaign slogan "four more years."

End to war would 'hurt' President

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George McGovern said today a settlement of the war in Vietnam would hurt President Nixon's election prospects more than his own because voters would ask why the same kind of agreement wasn't reached four years ago.

"It appears to me that if the President should end the Vietnam war before we count the votes on Nov. 7 that he has run it for another four years purely to avoid criticism from the right-wing war hawks here at home," the Democratic presidential nominee said.

Thieu disagrees with U.S. policy

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu declared tonight no one has the right to impose a peace agreement on the South Vietnamese, thus indicating sharp disagreement with the United States on an Indochina settlement.

The president condemned Communist peace proposals, saying they were "dark schemes aimed at taking over South Vietnam."

Thieu spoke over national television and radio after five days of intensive talks with Henry A. Kissinger on peace prospects for Vietnam.

"If a cease-fire occurs, we will always respect it, but the Communists will not," Thieu said. "We respect peace, a cease-fire."

He coupled this with an appeal to all political and religious groups to participate with the Saigon government in case a cease-fire should occur. His speech was essentially a reiteration of South Vietnam's long-standing position on an Indochina peace settlement. Thieu said he would not be forced into an agreement he did not want.

"No one has the right to sign any agreement, any cease-fire pact or peace pact for the South Vietnamese. Only the South Vietnamese can do it for themselves," he said.

The remark appeared aimed at the United States but Thieu said his discussions with Kissinger had been "very useful and clear discussions."

Thieu's strong statement apparently was intended to gather public support for his reaction to the Communists' proposal for a coalition government.

Bombing reduced during critical VN peace talks

SAIGON (AP) — President Nixon has reduced the bombing of North Vietnam, mainly around Hanoi and Haiphong, during the critical peace negotiations that have been under way, it was learned today.

The gesture coincides with the onset of the northeast monsoons over the North, which always reduce American air activity there and divert the thrust of the bombing campaign to the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos, where the dry season has begun.

The U.S. Command refused to confirm or deny the reported restrictions, but the 7th Fleet disclosed without elaboration that three of its four carriers had moved from the Tonkin Gulf off the coast of North Vietnam into the South China Sea off the coast of South Vietnam.

Other sources outside the U.S. Command confirmed the report, but declined to go into details of the restriction or say whether it was part of some kind of a tacit agreement between the United States and North Vietnam. U.S. fighter-bombers have been averaging less than 200 strikes against North Vietnam in the past few days. The U.S. Command reported about 120 strikes Monday.

A spokesman for the command noted that the northeast monsoons are now under way and added that "weather is a possible factor" in the reduction in the strikes from the previous average of 300 or more per day. But even the bombers flying were staying away from the Hanoi-Haiphong industrial complex, or what one Air Force commander called "the vitals of North Vietnam."

The U.S. Command also reported that B52 bombers made no raids in North Vietnam during the 24 hours ending at noon Tuesday. It was the third day this month of B52 strikes in the north. Military sources reported that Viet Cong guerrillas and political cadre are stockpiling flags and loudspeakers for a major propaganda effort in the event of a cease-fire.

A document captured Oct. 9 in Binh Dinh Province ordered Viet Cong cadre to "prepare for a critical period of transition and make your presence highly visible." It was signed by the Viet Cong province chief.

The document ordered the Communist forces to form special propaganda teams of three to five people in each hamlet to raise Viet Cong flags, point them on walls and houses and obliterate South Vietnamese flags with whitewash.

Each Viet Cong soldier must carry 20 flags with him, the document ordered.

Top aides hear Vietnam report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon called in his top military and diplomatic aides today to hear a report on Vietnam by Henry A. Kissinger. Some officials expected the report to dwell on a Saigon-constructed roadblock to an Indochina settlement.

Kissinger, Nixon's chief national-security adviser, and Army Chief of Staff Gen. Creighton W. Abrams returned here on separate military flights Monday night from nearly a week of meetings with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and other officials.

"We made some progress," Kissinger said on arriving in Washington. He met with Nixon for 30 minutes Monday night, the White House said.

Although the U.S. embassy in Saigon described the high-level meetings as having "made progress," there was no sign Kissinger convinced Thieu to agree to some form of coalition government with the Viet Cong.

Tin Song, a South Vietnamese newspaper that generally expresses Thieu's stands, said the talks with Kissinger were held in a "very heated atmosphere in the face of unyielding Vietnamese determination to stand pat on its position."

That position as expressed earlier by the official South Vietnamese radio is to "never accept a two-, three- or four-party government."

With speculation continuing unabated that Kissinger and North Vietnamese officials earlier had reached agreements in principle on a cease-fire of some type involving total U.S. withdrawal and return of prisoners, the Saigon refusal to accede to a coalition appears the major obstacle.

Officials in Washington said the United States still holds out hope for some settlement—or at least a statement of principles—before the Nov. 7 presidential election.

The timing of Nixon's re-election battle is assuming ever-larger proportions. North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong was quoted by Canadian television newsmen Michael MacClear as suggesting Kissinger's inability to convince Thieu on the coalition issue is politically grounded.

A North Vietnamese official in Paris, Nguyen Thanh Le, told reporters Monday that "the Vietnamese problem is still not settled," and, "in these circumstances, world opinion cannot help asking the following question:

"Does the Nixon administration really want serious negotiations or does it still engage in maneuvers aimed at deceiving public opinion?"

Texarkana stop set for Shriver

LITTLE ROCK AP—Sargent Shriver, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, and his wife will be in Texarkana Wednesday night for a campaign speech.

Shriver is scheduled to speak at 8 p.m. at a Democratic rally in front of the downtown Post Office here, which straddles the Arkansas-Texas state line.

This will mark Shriver's second trip to Arkansas since he was picked by Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota to be his running mate.

Also scheduled to attend the rally are Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., Gov. Dale Bumpers and Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex.

Forest management study Thursday

A forest management study day will be conducted at the Southwest branch experiment station in Hope Thursday.

Research to be observed and discussed during the morning session will consist of Hypo-Hatch method of control of unwanted hardwoods, tip moth, and other forest insect-control, according to Cecil Bittle, assistant director in charge. Results of 30 years study a loblolly plantation where spacing and thinning were involved will also be reviewed as well as alternative methods of handling pine plantations and the results of a 25 year pine management program.

Some 30,000 board feet of sawlog from this woodland will be on display. Also on the research phase of the program will be a discussion of 18 years of a post treatment trial along with discussions affecting the woodland owner.

The afternoon program will include demonstrations and displays by commercial saw and chemical companies.

State and federal agencies along with forest industries and consulting foresters will point out to the visitors what services each has to offer to the woodland owners.

Bill G. Gresham, state forester with the Arkansas State Forestry Commission will be the keynote speaker.

Visitors are to assemble from 9:30 to 10 a.m. at the Spencer Tract, ¼ mile Northeast of Perrytown.

Rash of wrecks reported here

Phillips was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way. Light damage was reported to the tractor-trailer rig, and severe damage was reported to the rear of the Pontiac.

At 9:50 a.m. yesterday (Monday), Virgil Powell, driving a 1968 Pontiac was struck broadside by a 1970 Pontiac driven by Bobby Champion. Both men are of Hope. Champion was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way.

'Day of silence' proclaimed in Chile

By LUIS MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The political opposition to President Salvador Allende urged the Chilean people to stay home today and observe a "day of silence" to protest his socialist program.

The Democratic Confederation of Center and Conservative parties said most activities should come to a halt in the country already beset by strikes against the leftist government.

"With our silence we want the government to hear the loud voice of the malcontents," a Confederation spokesman said.

Three radio stations urging participation in the protest were closed down Monday night for disobeying a military order to broadcast only material approved by the government.

The three, which had pulled out of a government-imposed national network, are owned by opposition groups. Authorities said they could not broadcast for six days.

Shortly after the stations were taken off the air, housewives all over Santiago leaned from their windows and began pounding pots, pans and skillets in protest against food shortages.

The wave of strikes by truckers, shopkeepers, students, doctors, dentists, engineers, architects and other professional people entered its 14th day today.

The strikers, grouped in a "command for union defense," are demanding a number of guarantees including "a climate of liberty, democracy and pluralism."

The government claimed that the strike wave was abating but said acts of terrorism have multiplied. It cited 53 recorded acts of violence in less than two weeks.

A government spokesman said there have been attacks against offices of the Communist, Socialist and Radical parties, which form Allende's Popular Unity coalition, and against drivers of commandeered trucks, industries and railway facilities.

A shortage of flour and bread developed Monday, and only small quantities of oil, rice and other essentials were being sold to each buyer. Gasoline also is rationed, but the shortage that seems to worry people most is that of cigarettes. There is a wild dash to tobacconists' booths whenever a delivery is rumored.

Proposes CIA agents be banned from politics

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
AURORA, Ill. (AP) — Sergeant Shriver is proposing that former CIA agents be legally and permanently banned from American political campaigns.

The Democratic vice presidential candidate repeatedly has attacked the Nixon administration for what he has called the "ominous" introduction of the techniques of espionage and sabotage into the current campaign.

Several former CIA agents have been implicated in connection with the break-in and alleged attempted bugging of Democratic national headquarters in Washington.

Shriver gave a preview of his proposal to several persons who had been unable to fit into a filled-to-capacity school auditorium in Aurora Monday night.

"It's my proposal that any persons who served in the Central Intelligence Agency be declared by law ineligible to serve in political campaigns," Shriver said.

Shriver said that while he was head of the Peace Corps he barred former CIA agents from the agency on grounds their presence would be misunderstood by host governments, and that they might subvert the purpose of the Peace Corps.

Shriver campaigned Monday in front of an open-hearth furnace at a Youngstown, Ohio, steel factory, on the assembly line of a giant Caterpillar Tractor Co. plant in Peoria, Ill., and at an unscheduled stop at a bartenders' union convention in Chicago.

Today, he planned to ride with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley in a parade through the city's Loop, then fly on to more campaigning in Texas and the South.

His Texas public appearances include a meeting in Childrens tonight, a rally in Denton at noon Wednesday and a Brownsville rally Wednesday evening.

In a televised news conference in Youngstown, Shriver suggested there may be political reasons behind what he called President Nixon's "sudden and frantic" efforts to end the war two weeks before election day.

If a negotiated end to the war is achieved in the next two weeks, he said, it will be because Nixon was "driven" to the bargaining table by the McGovern campaign.

James Puryear guest of Hope Lions Club

James Puryear, of Hope, a former farm machinery salesman and serviceman, was the guest speaker during the Lion's Club weekly luncheon Monday at the Town and Country restaurant.

After 28 years in the business of selling farm equipment, four years in Prescott and 24 in Hope, Puryear became blind about a year ago and was encouraged by Lions to enroll at the Rehabilitation School for the Blind at Little Rock. The school is part of the Arkansas Enterprises for the Blind and is sponsored and supported by the Lions of Arkansas.

Puryear was 49 when stricken with blindness but was not one to give up easily. He mastered typing and some braille and learned the tricks of folding and packing clothes, dressing himself and most importantly—mobility; being able to go where he wants to go on his own. Use of a long cane, called "The Arkansas Traveler," makes this possible.

He recounted some amusing, but frustrating experiences while in training.

About the time he had learned to make his way to a particular table in the dining hall with no trouble, he said, they would then assign him to a new table.

Puryear told the club that trainees were treated with kindness but firmness and that instruction was on an individual basis. He met blind trainees from Israel, Cuba, and most of the states in America.

Puryear said that Arkansans were losing their sight at the rate of about 450 per year and he expressed a desire to counsel with the blind and to speak to the schools on this subject.

Most trainees at the AEB are in their 30s.

Puryear is now employed at Meyers Bakery in Hope.

The program was arranged by Lion Bill Capps and was of special interest to club members because of Lion's participation in sight conservation work.

Interclub visits were discussed in a short business session. Lockesburg was visited by five Lions last week and plans were made to visit the Lions at Bradley this week.

Leon Kilbreath, an evangelist holding services at the First Baptist Church was the guest of Lion Gerald Trussell. Kilbreath is from Greensboro, N.C.

In a special board meeting Puryear as made an honorary member of the club and Roger Nunn became a new member.

Officer is 'out to sex'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Instead of the typical "Out to Lunch" sign, the one in Susan Johnston's office reads: "Out to Sex."

That's because when the 26-year-old woman is not in her office at the police department, she may be acting as a decoy in one of the city's high sex crime areas, walking through a park or along a street, waiting for someone to try to abduct or rape her.

She works with eight other officers, all men, in the sex crime unit of the crimes against persons divisions.

"I realize there is a potential danger in my job but I'm well protected," the petite mother of a 3-year-old girl said. "There are always about eight or 10 men nearby who assist in the capture."

Detective Johnston was to have lunch with President Nixon in Washington today and meet with Justice Department officials.

She shares the honor with nine other officers who recently were presented awards at the Police Service Program at Salt Lake City, sponsored by Parade magazine and the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

She is the only woman to receive the award.

Mrs. Johnston, who is divorced, is in her final year of night school at Central Missouri State University at Warrensburg, where she is majoring in law enforcement. She started work in the police department 7½ years ago.

In addition to her work in the sex crimes unit she gives lessons in self-defense through the department's community relations unit.

"Men that I date sometimes are bewildered," she said, "but they feel well protected."

How to Feel a Native Shopper

RAP:
I am male, 20, in college and mostly broke. My roommate and I both work part-time and share expenses. One week I cook, the next she does.

Here's my beef. Supermarkets are out to shaft you. I think I am getting bargains and the bill comes to about twice what I figure, or else I get only about half of what I think I'm getting. Like fresh vegetables: they come, say in two-pound packages, and the sign says in big print, 25 cents, so I naturally think it means "per package," because who can read the minuscule "lb." But the checker rings up 50 cents! I buy what seems like the cheapest peanut butter and find it is only a smaller jar, that looks larger.

My roommate says I'll learn, but my question is, why make it so tough on shoppers? —BROKE AND HUNGRY B AND H:

Why don't you shop together and let your room mate give you a crash course in super-markets? And complain about the vegetable markings! That's taking unfair advantage of non-readers. —SUE DEAR BROKE AND HUNGRY:

Or why don't you switch to a market that lists price-per-ounce (or pound) on all pre-packaged grocery items—as well as meats and vegetables? (In readable print!) At least one nationwide chain does this now, and I think others will soon follow. —HELEN HELEN AND SUE:

Unanswerable question No. 5764: At least one new TV comedy series has a "house drunk"—an alcoholic that is supposed to lay 'em in the aisles with his juiced humor.

With alcoholism the No. 1 drug disease that knowed out over five million people a year, is it a laughing matter?

If so, then why don't they do a comedy show on stoned pot smokers? They can be very funny too, you know. —KARL KARL:

I can't answer your "unanswerable," but maybe CBS, NBC or ABC officials may take a whack at it. Why don't you ask them? —SUE DEAR KARL:

They just might point out that if we stop laughing at disasters like barfies, bigots, bumbling bosses and overbearing females, comedy writers would beat their heads against the walls. A lot of humor is built on someone else's misery, you know. —HELEN DEAR RAP:

I'm not a libber, but I still like to go braless sometimes. It's hot down here in Florida and a girl is much more comfortable in loose T-shirts when she's dressed down.

I know the stuff about the "Coopers Muscle" and losing your shape (but I wonder if arm exercises wouldn't take care of that?), so I don't go braless to school. But I like to feel free when I'm just hanging around home. Is this so terrible and disgusting as some of my relatives say? —BRALESS TEEN DEAR BRALESS:

By me, it isn't! But that won't change your relatives who probably figure every braless girl is just out to prove a couple of points. —HELEN DEAR TEEN:

If you shed your bra for dress-down comfort and not for sex-through show-off, anyone who criticizes is just too darn snooty. —SEZ SUE

TCU to feel wrath of Notre Dam

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas Christian must feel Notre Dame's wrath this Saturday at less than top strength.

Coach Billy Tohill of the Horned Frogs ticked off his injuries Monday and said "We had several nagging hurts that will keep some of the players out of workouts but they should be ready for Notre Dame."

"They'd better be ... We're going to need everyone we can get."

Notre Dame was stunned by Missouri last Saturday and South Bend, Ind., should be a warm spot for the Horned Frogs.

Tohill said strong linebacker Gary Whitman of Baytown suffered a broken hand in TCU's 13-10 victory over Texas A&M but should play against the Fighting Irish. Sophomore Gene Moser is ready to spell Whitman.

Tohill said "Physically, we had more aches and bruises than after any game this season. The Aggies really get after you."

In Austin, Texas Coach Darrell Royal said his offense line played its best game of the season in the 35-15 victory over Arkansas.

"Last week you worry about whether your team can get ready to play after a crushing defeat (Oklahoma 27, Texas 0) and this week you wonder if they're overconfident—what a difference a week makes."

Texas plays Rice in Houston Saturday night.

"We have never gone to Rice Stadium and had anything but a rude bouncing around," Royal said. "I don't think we've ever performed there like we've been predicted to, and I don't think we've had a game there that was decided before the fourth quarter."

Rice Coach Al Conover was worked about the mental con-

Baseball hero dies

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Jackie Robinson, a black infielder who wrote baseball history when he broke the major league's color barrier in 1947, died today, apparently of a heart attack.

The 51-year-old star of the former Brooklyn Dodgers was dead on arrival at Stamford Hospital after being stricken early this morning at his home here.

Robinson, who retired as a player in 1957, became the first black to play in the majors when he joined the National League Dodgers in 1947 and helped lead the club to the league championship.

Robinson's exploits at first base and at the plate the first year earned Rookie of the Year honors. Two years later, he led the league in batting with an average of .342 and was named the National League's most valuable player.

Robinson quit baseball in 1957 rather than go through with a trade to the New York Giants. He took a job as vice president of Chock Full O' Nuts, the coffee and restaurant organization.

With Robinson breaking the color barrier, Larry Doby became the first black to join the American League the next year. Today, some of the game's greatest stars — Willie Mays, Henry Aaron, Bob Gibson, to name but a few — are black.

Over the years, as Robinson established himself, he dropped the early turn-the-cheek posture and became more outspoken on the question of blacks in baseball. Bob Feller, the fireballing Cleveland Indians pitcher, once referred to Robinson as a "professional agitator."

"Maybe I wasn't the ideal man for the role Mr. Rickey had in mind," Robinson would recall years later. "But after I stored up all that stuff they gave me my first couple of years, it was enough. I had to be able to squawk when I thought I had a squawk coming. I found I could play better by letting off steam."

Robinson quit the game in 1957 in a dispute over his trade to the New York Giants.

From baseball, Robinson took a job as a vice president of Chock Full O' Nuts, concerning himself mainly with the restaurant chain's minority programs. But he became increasingly active in civil rights, community and political activities. He made numerous week-end tours on behalf of the NAACP, and on the baseball side he pressed vociferously for appointment of black coaches, managers and front-office administrators.

His politics also became somewhat of an enigma to some of his more liberal black friends and associates. They were described as aghast at his support for Richard Nixon in the 1960 presidential race. He supported President Johnson in 1964.

His civil rights work won him additional accolades from the NAACP and from the late Martin Luther King Jr., the slain leader of the Southern Christian Leadership Council. He also was appointed to numerous local, state and federal councils on youth and civil liberties.

In 1964, Robinson left Chock Full O' Nuts to launch his own business career, becoming a founder of the Freedom National Bank in Harlem. He also organized his own insurance firm.

Robinson was named to baseball's Hall of Fame in 1962, the first year he was eligible. Robinson suffered a deep personal blow in 1971, when his son Jackie Jr., then 24 and on his way back from drug addiction, was killed in an automobile accident en route home from his job with a drug aid program.

Chuck Tanner:

Manager of the year

CHICAGO (AP) — Towards the end of the regular American League season, Billy Martin of the Detroit Tigers told Chuck Tanner of the Chicago White Sox: "It's got to be either you or me for Manager of the Year."

That was disclosed today by Tanner, who was named Monday the AL Manager of the Year in an Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters. The White Sox finished 5½ games behind the Oakland A's, newly crowned World champions, in the AL West race.

"If you win, I'll send you a congratulatory wire, and if I win, you can send me one," is the way Martin was quoted by Tanner.

It turned out Tanner received 213 votes to capture the coveted honor, while Eddie Kasko of the Boston Red Sox collected 140, and Martin was third with 66.

The poll, completed prior to the opening of the major league playoffs, ranked Dick Williams of the Oakland A's fifth with 24 votes, behind Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees, fourth with 38.

Tanner, in only his second full major league season, made a season-long run at the Oakland A's mainly with a three-man show—Dick Allen, Wilbur Wood and Carlos May.

The charismatic Tanner, once a journeyman big league outfielder, accepted the Manager of the Year honor with complete surprise.

"Is that right?" he kept repeating when informed of his selection. "What do you say? I'm very grateful and it's a big thrill to me. I have to credit the whole White Sox organization, from the scouts to the players who did the job."

Ali makes poetry jabs at Foster

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Muhammad Ali, using poetry again to jab at his opponents outside the ring, has made light heavyweight champion Bob Foster the latest target of his rhymes.

"Round eight will be his fate," Ali said, predicting the outcome of his Nov. 21 bout with Foster at Lake Tahoe, Nev.

"And if he starts talking five, I'll reduce it to five," he went on. "I don't like fighters that talk too much."

From there the former world heavyweight champion conducted a free-wheeling one-man show at a news conference Monday to promote three exhibition fights here tonight.

In no time at all, he was reciting a poem about how a radio announcer would report a rematch with Joe Frazier, who defeated Ali for the heavyweight crown:

"... Now Ali lands with a right—'What a beautiful swing.' 'And the punch lifts Joe Frazier 'Clean out of the ring ...

"Now Joe Frazier disappears from view. 'The crowd is getting frantic. 'But our radar statio stations have picked him up—'He is somewhere over the Atlantic."

"Who would have thought when they came to the fight, 'That they would have witnessed the launching of a colored satellite?'"

Someone in the crowd of admirers volunteered, "You're the greatest."

"Tell me something new, tell me," Ali shot back.

Fifteen yards for biting the ref?

Dick Butkus, the ferocious linebacker of the Chicago Bears was piously denying that he had ever sunk his teeth into a referee on the battlefield.

"If I'd been dumb enough to bite a referee, I would have bitten his arm off," said Butkus as he bared his werewolf fangs at a Life Magazine interviewer.

Just to be safe, though, NFL officials are standing in line for tetanus shots this year because the fans, coaches and players have united to spread some static on the judgment calls that spell disaster by inches to the losing team.

No less than Pete Rozelle's pontifical office rapped referee Norm Schacter and his crew on the wrist for missing a call in the Oakland-Green Bay game the second week of the season. Oakland was awarded a winning touchdown on a 104-yard runback of a fumbled lateral. The rule states that a muffed lateral may not be advanced and so the call was a lapse of interpretation for the NFL crew.

Then there were grumblings in Washington the third week of the season. Post-game films indicated that Redskins receiver Roy Jefferson did indeed twinkle-toe inbounds with a game winning touchdown against the upstart New England Patriots. Officials had ruled otherwise on the field and hot contender Washington lost its first game of the season, 24-23.

And after a game with Detroit, Chicago Bears coach Abe Giron opted for the $500 fine levied by the NFL for public criticism of officiating. But Giron had good reason. In that game, the Lions received zero penalties. Can you believe that? Come on now, ref. Not one sneaky little holding on the offensive line? Not one clip, the whooille game? I demand that the Detroit Lions turn in their heraldic motif helmets for stark white ... as the NFL's only good guys.

In each of the three situations above, the team doing the grouching lost. And so the stench of sour grapes shrouds the issue.

Still, an ex-NFL player told me that the 'bad calls' of the referees were "part of the game, like the elements of weather, team emotion and luck. You just have to play to make up for the bad calls. Then you have no legitimate gripe."

Human judgment and human error from the players and coaches as well as from the officials will always dominate football. But there are other sports that are trying to remove as much of the error from their officiating as is humanly possible.

Tennis is one. Big-time tennis or nickel-and-dime tournaments are both officiated by men and women who volunteer their time. They are unpaid officials whose availability is more important in some cases than their qualifications. They work sporadically at a job that requires extreme eye agility and instant decision.

To improve the quality of tennis officiating, Colonel Fred Karsten of Houston, Texas, has invented the Electronic Line Indicator (ELI), which was demonstrated at the U.S. Open Tennis Championship at Forest Hills last August.

It will, in theory at least, lower the margin of error on line calls and reduce the number of linesmen required for a match.

ELI consists of sets of transmitter-receivers which pulse infra-red light over and alongside the boundary lines of the court. A logic module interprets the signal interruption and flashes on the official's indicator board whether the ball fell 'in' or 'out.'

Sport is entering the age of the electronic gadget. Football coaches draw up game plans aided by the computer print-out, and soon the officials of the NFL will be offered the use of the ELI, which has obvious applications to football and baseball as well as tennis.

In the meantime, victims from Green Bay, Washington, ...

Dallas and Chicago are calling for a system of checks and balances. There are pleas to allow each team on the field three reviews per game of questionable or crucial calls. Obviously, video tape, instant replay, slow motion and stop-action camera work would be more conclusive in some instances than the eyesight of a referee 10 yards away from the action.

Ah, yes, the day is near when the artificial turf will be rolled out goal-to-goal, mined and wired electronically and further sensitized by Colonel Karsten's infra-red beams pulsing back and forth. And players' joke lists will include that oldie, "Zap, you're sterile," for the guy who trips the switch.

But until that electronic age gets a toe-hold in the NFL, the referees in their prison-striped shirts stand vulnerable to hoots, cat-calls and miscellaneous evil-doing by the likes of Dick Butkus when their instant decisions are questioned.

Razorbacks: Making changes

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)

Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles announced several line-up changes for the Razorbacks Monday. Broyles indicated several more changes were likely this week.

The Razorbacks returned to practice Monday following Saturday's 35-15 loss to Texas to begin preparing for Saturday's game against North Texas State.

Defensive safety John Moseley was switched to tailback and freshman Tommy Harris was moved to Moseley's position.

Jim Benton, who started at defensive end the last three games, was moved to linebacker, where he played last year, after Broyles said none of the starting linebackers would be able to play Saturday because of injuries.

Broyles said linebackers Danny Rhodes, who had 14 tackles and three assists against Texas, Scott Binnion and John Wheat will miss the North Texas State game in Little Rock Saturday. Rhodes received a severely bruised right thigh in the Texas game. Wheat is suffering from a broken thumb and Binnion is out with an injured right knee.

The probable starting linebackers Saturday will be sophomore Billy Burns, junior Ed Rownd and Benton. Sophomore Ray Strain probably will take Benton's place at defensive end.

One bright spot for the Razorbacks was the return to practice of fullback Marsh White, who was injured in Arkansas' opener against Southern Cal.

In Monday's practice, Broyles sent the Porkers through a lengthy scrimmage. "We had a scrimmage with a lot of fellows who haven't played very much in the last three or four weeks," Broyles said. "Film was taken of them and we will try to evaluate them this week."

Bears clinch second straight victory

CHICAGO (AP) — "I don't care who says how lucky we were or how close it was," said Abe Giron Monday night after his rejuvenated Chicago Bears edged the Minnesota Vikings 13-10. "We won and that's all that counts."

The Bears didn't clinch their second straight victory until a Minnesota touchdown pass from Fran Tarkenton to John Beasley had been called back because of an ineligible receiver downfield and Fred Cox missed a 27-yard field goal at attempt with seven seconds remaining.

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant, angry but calm, said "It's too bad the big play had to be made by the officials. There wasn't a flag for some time after the play had been consummated."

"Ask the officials," said Grant when asked who the ineligible receiver was. It was guard Ed White who apparently strayed too far while Tarkenton was scrambling before he spotted Beasley.

The loss dropped the Vikings, preseason favorites, into last place in the Central Division of the National Football Conference while the Bears climbed within 1½ games of Green Bay and Detroit who are tied for the division lead.

The Vikings had the ball for only nine plays in the first half but one of them was a 44-yard touchdown pass from Tarkenton to John Gilliam on a third down situation in Minnesota's first series of play.

Chicago then dominated the first half, running off 41 plays while taking a 10-7 lead on a 21-yard field goal by Mac Percival and a four-yard touchdown pass from Bobby Douglass to Jim Harrison who carried the ball 31 times and gained 103 yards rushing.

Dick Butkus launched the touchdown drive by recovering an Oscar Reed fumble and later called a fake field goal and a fake punt which helped the Bears immensely.

The fake field goal call came on the touchdown drive with the holder Douglass rolling out for six yards and a first down.

The fake punt came in the third quarter when Bobby Joe Green passed to Cecil Turner for 23 yards and a first down. Two plays later, Cyril Pinder fumbled the ball to Minnesota. After the Vikings moved to the Chicago 46, Butkus intercepted a Tarkenton pass which eventually resulted in a 20-yard field goal by Percival for the Bear win.

Cox had connected on a 21-yarder with 1:35 left in the third quarter to tie the score at 10-10 and set the stage for the pulsating fourth quarter.

Douglass rushed 11 times for 66 yards, getting 56 of them in the first half and he completed only three of five pass attempts for 33 yards in a typical Douglass performance.

Report analyzing budget proposal not 'scare tactic'

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Rep. George E. Nowotny Jr. of Fort Smith said Monday night that a report "analyzing" the defense budget proposal of George S. McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, was not a scare tactic.

"It's strictly a projection," Nowotny said in an interview here. "I don't believe it's a scare tactic. It's an evaluation of a potential program. It's no more a scare tactic than any of the statements by Sen. McGovern."

Nowotny, who is director of the Arkansas campaign for the re-election of President Nixon, said the report was an analysis of the potential results that "could result from an immediate slash in the defense budget" as proposed by McGovern.

The Committee for the Re-election of the President produced the report, which was received by Arkansas newspapers Monday, saying McGovern's proposal to cut defense budgets could result in Arkansas losing 2,000 civilian employees and $82 million in business with the military.

The report was based primarily on expenditures at the Pine Bluff Arsenal, Blytheville Air Force Base and Little Rock Air Force Base. The payrolls at these installations, for both military and civilians, total about $106 million.

The study was made by the House Republican Policy Committee based on defense budget proposals by McGovern in January of this year, Nowotny said. He said a subsequent analysis of the budget proposal was done in July by the Defense Department.

The report said it had to apply McGovern's cuts uniformly across the country and for that reason the impact in the state might be considerably more severe than the report showed. "It certainly will be no less severe," the report said.

The report said McGovern would cut the arsenal spending by 26 per cent, the civilian employment at the two air bases by 26 per cent and the military personnel at the two bases by 61 per cent. The 61 per cent applied to Strategic Air Command (SAC) bases, and the report listed Little Air Force Base as a SAC installation, but it was transferred to the standing of Tactical Air Command (TAC) in 1970.

The report said procurement would be cut by 48 per cent, and this would mean a cut in Arkansas of "as much as $82 million in business and 2,000 jobs." The report said military procurement from Arkansas business amounted to $160 million a year and 5,000 jobs.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Monday there was a "definite fallacy" in reasoning by Republicans that Arkansas stood to lose 2,000 jobs and $82 million. He said he thought the Arkansas congressional delegation could stop that.

He also said he thought McGovern would meet resistance in Congress on defense cuts.

Nowotny said the nominee proposed to keep the nation's deployable missiles at 1,000. Nowotny said there are 1,604 now and that 34 of those are Titan IIs, which the Little Rock Air Force Base has. He said "it's normal logic" that the 34 to go would be the Titans and "if you lose them, you've lost another reason to keep Little Rock Air Force Base."

Drug abuse epidemic in Washington County

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Washington County Grand Jury reported Monday that drug abuse had reached "epidemic" proportions in Fayetteville.

"The illicit drug activity in Washington County has been investigated by the grand jury," the report said. "The abuse of drugs is not restricted to any particular class or condition. It has crossed all lines of social and economic levels."

"Illicit drug experimentation and use is extensive among Fayetteville high school students and even reaches down into the junior highs," the jury reported.

The report said Springdale schools were similarly affected and that other schools in the county have problems.

The jury heard 163 witnesses in its investigation that began Sept. 26, and the jury returned 23 indictments that were revealed Monday.

Among those indicted were a former school teacher and a former teacher's aide.

Authorities said Virginia Saunders, 31, of Springdale, an English teacher at Woodland Junior High School in Fayetteville, was indicted on three counts of contributing to the delinquency of minors. The indictment alleges that Mrs. Saunders encouraged minors to possess and use marijuana.

Jessie Donnie Fickie, 24, of Fayetteville, former teacher's aide in the same school, was indicted for the same reasons.

Beryl L. Wheeler Jr., 18, of Springdale was indicted on a perjury count that alleges he testified falsely in saying he had not offered for sale or sold marijuana.

The jury reported that it has been estimated that 25 to 40 per cent of Fayetteville high school students were users of such drugs as marijuana, "speed," LSD and barbiturates "with the percentage of one-or-two-time experimenters reaching far above that."

"According to testimony, drugs are widely used at the University of Arkansas," the report said. "Heroin and morphine have made their appearance in the county. It is felt this is a major cause of increased crime."

"A number of students, drop-outs, older youths and drifters have become drug suppliers, adding to the traffickers who can be found, according to the majority of witnesses, anywhere on the street," the jury said.

BURGULARS BOMB ON HIT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If the burglars who broke into the International School of Bartending were expecting a high time, they were disappointed.

The place was full of liquor bottles — containing colored water — and money — "play" money used in training.

The disgruntled burglars smashed about 60 bottles and scattered the money over the floor before leaving, investigators reported Monday.

McGovern hounds Nixon for debate; MacGregor nixes idea

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. George McGovern said today that instead of planting questions for him with television interviewers President Nixon should "consider a less surreptitious route—like asking them himself, in a face-to-face debate with me before the American people."

Nixon's campaign manager, Clark MacGregor, has said there will be no such debates. McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, said the Nixon campaign attempted Sunday to plant questions not only for him but for vice-presdential candidate Sargent Shriver when they appeared on network television interviews. McGovern called that "one of the more arrogant episodes in a Republican campaign marked more by its audacity than its honesty."

On ABC's "Issues and Answers" Sunday, one interviewer said the White House had submitted a number of questions for McGovern. The Democratic nominee said in a statement that he has been answering questions for 20 months while Nixon "has taken sanctuary in the White House ..."

"I expect that is because Mr. Nixon is afraid ... he might be asked whether it is really possible that a massive effort to sabotage the electoral process could be undertaken without his knowledge or approval. "If Mr. Nixon was not involved in all of this, he is apparently one of the few people in the White House who won't," McGovern said. The Democratic nominee Monday night repeated his call for postwar amnesty for draft dodgers and contended that his position on that issue is not much different from Nixon's. Answering telephoned questions in a campaign television appearance, McGovern said he considers the difference in his and Nixon's position "not all as great as has been made out." "He (Nixon) has said that once the war is over and our prisoners of war are returned that he would consider amnesty for those young men who stood up against the war on grounds of conscience," McGovern said. "That's almost exactly a verbatim statement of my position."

But McGovern based that on a statement Nixon made nearly 10 months ago. The President has denounced amnesty proposals twice in the past eight days, declaring that those who find the draft will "pay a price for their choice."

McGovern said in his telecast that he had never advocated amnesty while the war continues.

More advice on nose bleeds

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Your comments about nose bleeds remind me of a similar experience I had about a year ago. I had intermittent but persistent nose bleeds for about a week. The difference was I am an adult. Two specialists handled my case. They checked my blood pressure and suggested that the air in my home was too warm and dry. They cauterized twice, but I still had nose bleeds. Finally the doctor gave me a prescription for medicine which he told me was for my blood, and also told me to get a tube of surgical lubricant. I used the small finger to rub this into each nostril at night before retiring. The doctor thought the medicine solved the problem. Packing also was always effective.

Dear Reader—My faith in the fundamental goodness of people and their desire to help others is always restored by the many letters I get from readers making helpful suggestions about other peoples' problems. I received a lot of suggestions about nose bleeds.

It is true, particularly in older people, that the lining of the nose may dry out. The scaly scabs inside are irritating and may bleed. They also stimulate people to pick their noses, causing bleeding. Any good lubricant in the tip of the nose will help solve the drying out problem. A petroleum base jelly or Vaseline is useful or any of the surgical lubricants. The idea is to keep the lining moist and retain the natural moisture in the cells below the surface of the lining. The lining of the nose is most apt to dry out during the winter months when the humidity is sharply decreased in many heated houses. The air tends to dry out the nasal passages.

Some of the other suggestions for nose bleeders from different readers is the use of vitamin C that some claim has been very successful. Others have suggested stopping other vitamins, particularly cod liver oil and Vitamin A. Still other readers think they have gotten success by taking vitamin A.

Other readers have asked about iron for nose bleeds. The purpose of taking iron is to replace iron lost from actual bleeding. Anyone who has persistent hemorrhage or loss of blood from any place, whether it be from an ulcer, nose bleed, hemorrhoids or menstruation, has a loss of iron. If the bleeding is persistent eventually this will deplete the body's stores of iron and they need to be replaced.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I read the article about the 16-year-old girl's problem of stomach rumbling and growling noises. I agree that it is terribly embarrassing when this is so loud and frequent. Tell her to drink an eight-ounce glass of nonfat milk or eat four to six crackers before going out. This stops mine.

Dear Reader—Thank you for your good suggestion. One of the things that will contribute to rumbling of the digestive tract is hunger. Eating a small amount of anything will often help relieve the hunger contractions and in some instances will eliminate the problem until hunger contractions recur.

Mills: McGovern has to change 'postures'

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Monday he thought Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern would have to change some of "his defense and economic postures."

"We're not going to disarm this country unilaterally," Mills said in a conference call to Arkansas newsmen. "Everybody knows that."

Mills said he thought McGovern would meet resistance in Congress on his present defense cut proposal.

"I've served with a great number of presidents," he said. "I haven't known one that hasn't changed his mind on matters after he was elected and could get more information."

The congressman said he thought Republicans were doing an "awfully good job" of creating an image of McGovern that is not correct.

He said there was a "definite fallacy" in reasoning by Republicans that Arkansas stood to loose 2,000 jobs and $82 million in business because of cuts to defense installations in the state.

"It appears that the Arkansas Committee to Re-elect the President is taking Sen.

McGovern's defense cut proposals and applying them across the board," Mills said.

At this time, Mills said, no one could tell what the cuts would be. "I think the Arkansas delegation could see to it that we not loose any," he said.

Mills said Arkansas has a very small part of the military installations in the country. Among the states he said might get cuts were Texas, California and Virginia. About 10 states have the bulk of the defense installations, he said.

"We've not had any cutbacks and I don't estimate we will have any whatsoever under the McGovern program," Mills said.

You don't have to be an expert to work a squeeze. On many occasions all you have to do is give the cards a chance.

East cashes two spades and shifts to the jack of hearts. Things look pretty bad for South, don't they?

He has lost two tricks already and there doesn't seem to be anything he can do to avoid losing a third one. However, the way the cards lie, all South has to do is play the hand out and he will make the rest of the tricks.

There is nothing fancy or difficult about the proceedings. He just runs off all his six trumps and takes care not to discard more than one club from dummy while he is running trumps.

The last trump lead squeezes West. He will only be able to hold four cards. He needs two hearts to protect that suit or three clubs to protect clubs.

You just can't keep three clubs and two hearts when you are down to four cards and as long as South has paid attention to the cards that have appeared he will make the rest of the tricks.

Will he know that he has executed a squeeze? Maybe not. Maybe he will just think that West discarded badly. It won't matter.

Put off buying a new pair of shoes and pay a freight surcharge instead?

That could be the size of it if we fail to pass Act 1. The railroads will add special charges to help pay the costs of Arkansas' wasteful Train Crew Laws. Prices in Arkansas will go up as a result, or, even worse, companies may cut back their payrolls and people may lose their jobs. All for nothing.

The only reason anyone could have for voting against Act 1 would be to fall for that nonsense about train crewmen losing their jobs, when, in fact, Act 1 guarantees those jobs. And the unions representing the crewmen have already signed agreements with the railroads that includes that job protection and other new benefits. Passage of Act 1 will put those agreements to work.

Actually, when Act 1 passes, every individual and every company in Arkansas benefits to some extent. If it doesn't pass, all of us will pay for it. On top of that, the train crewmen won't get the improved job protection provisions Act 1 assures them.

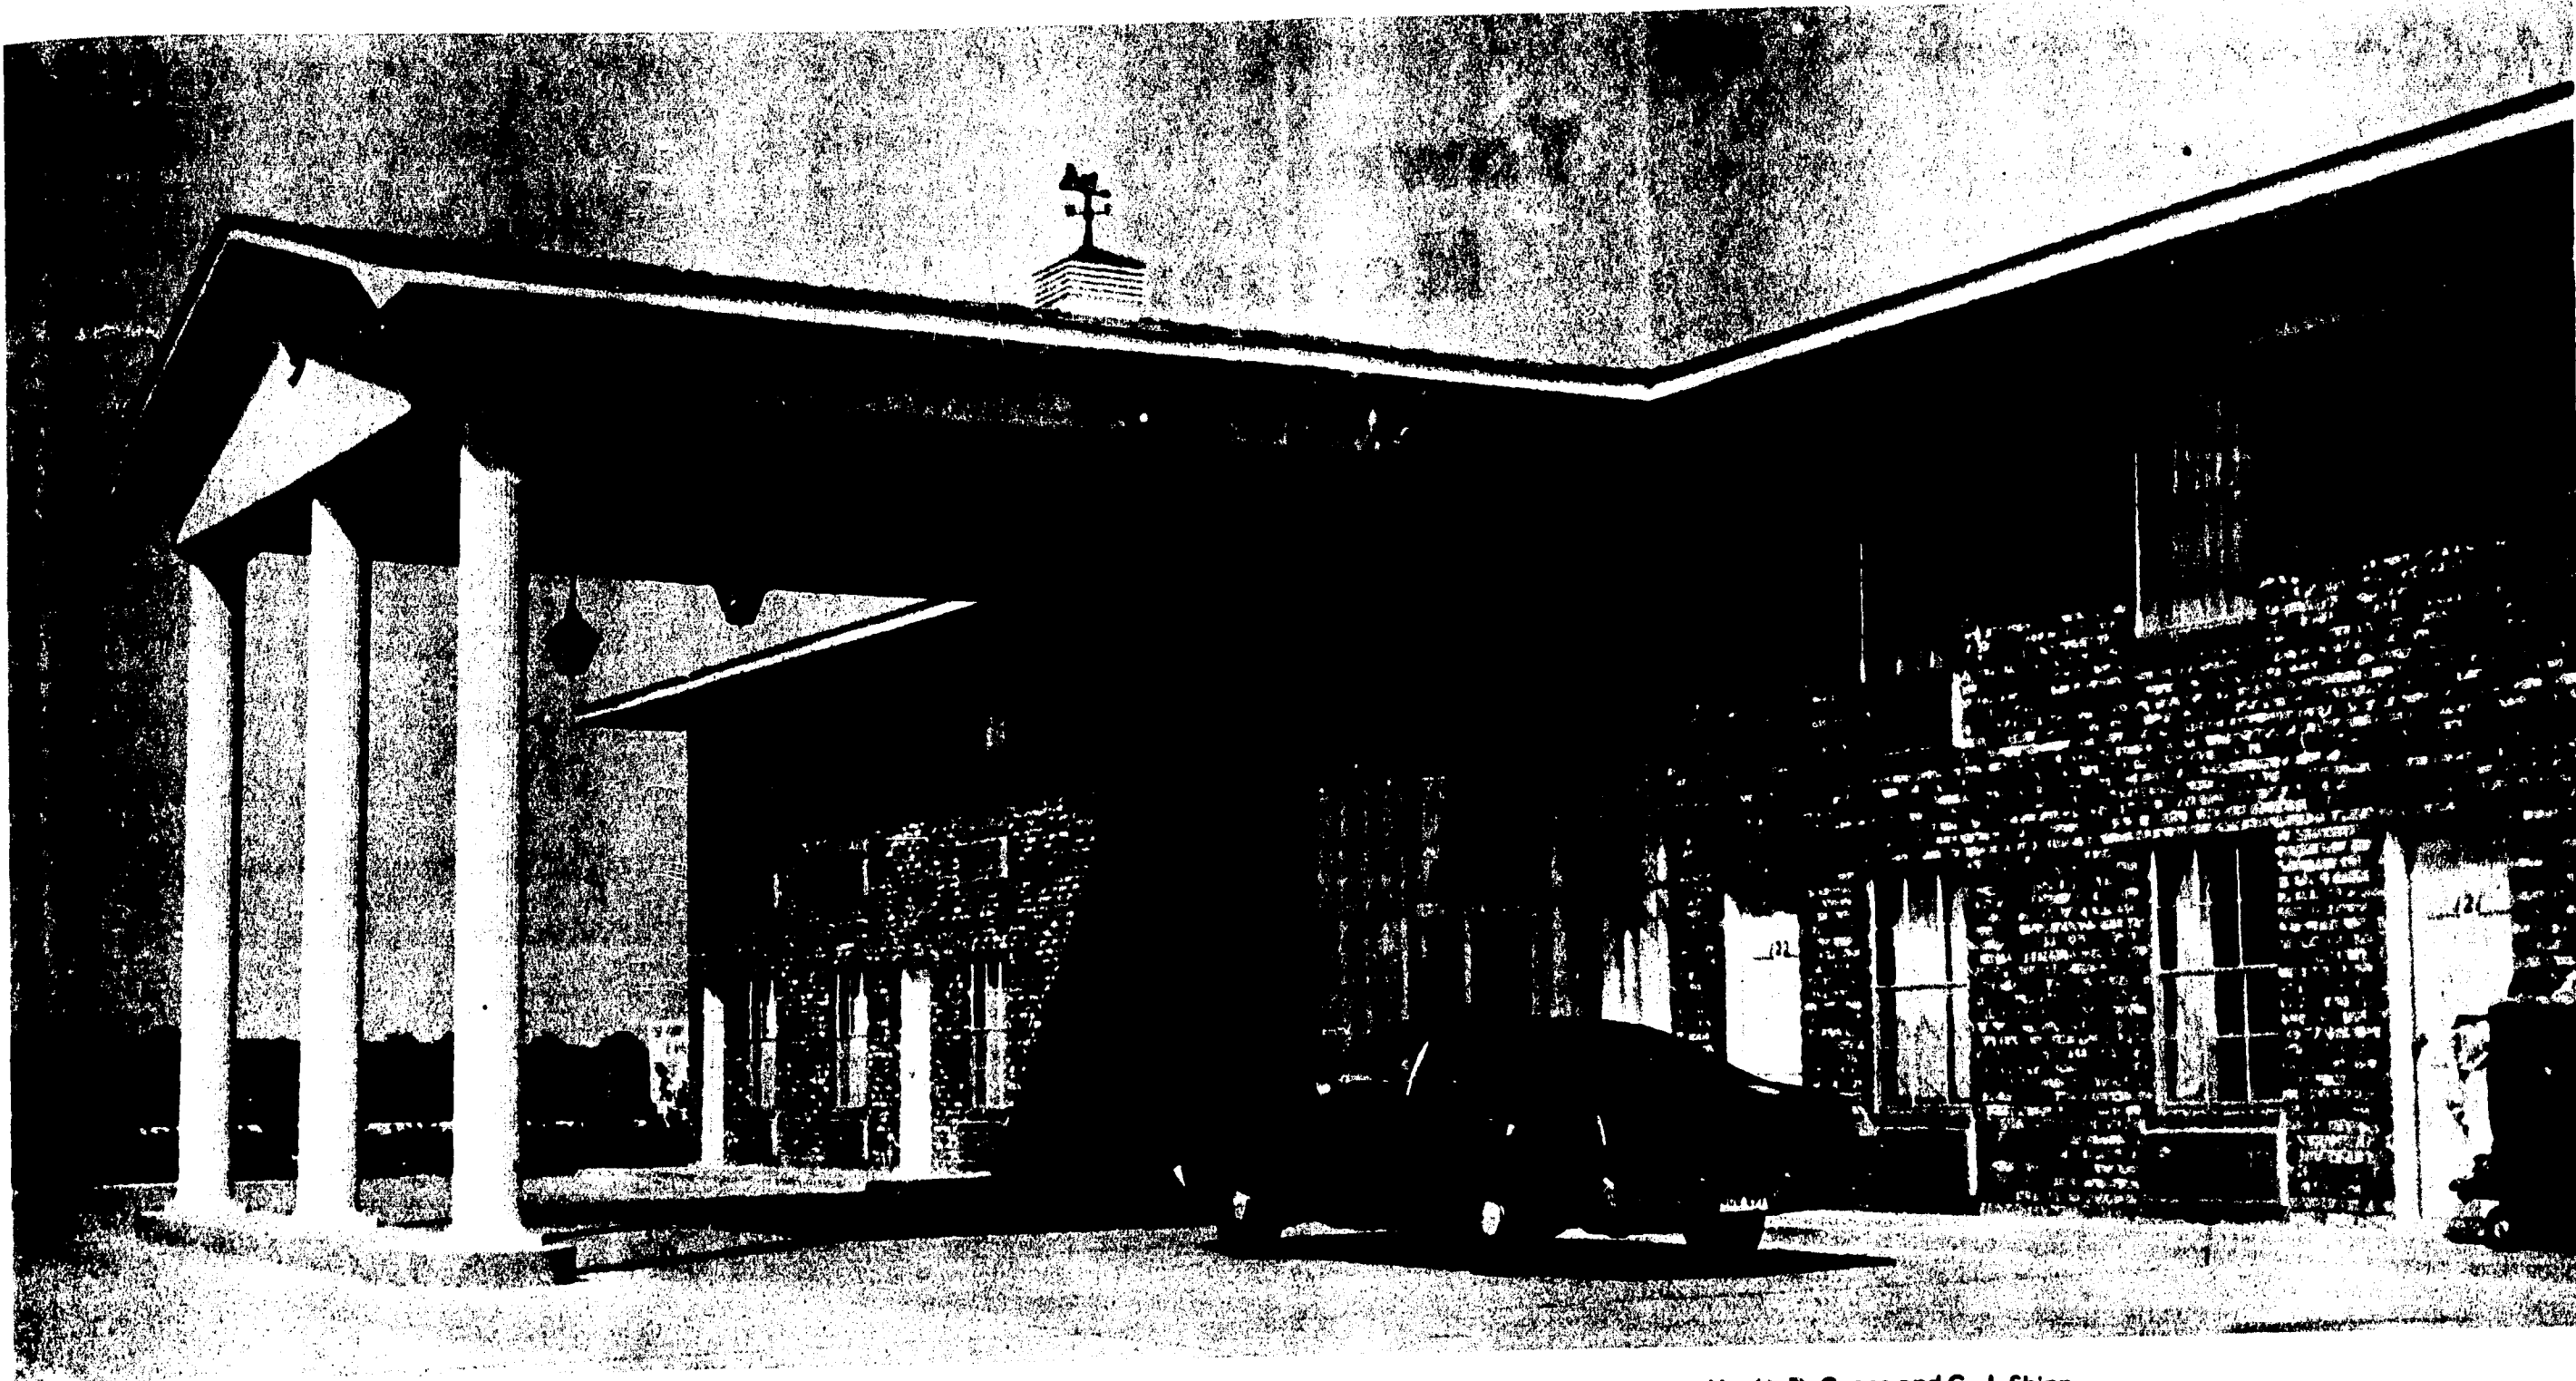

Vote FOR Act 1 and let's put an end to this threat of higher prices and fewer opportunities. And put a beginning to improved job protection for train crew members.

Vote FOR Act 1.

Crackdown on mail-order insurance is possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — A wave of criticism against mail-order hospital insurance has led to a proposed nationwide crackdown on alleged deceptive advertising of policies.

The National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) has ordered the drafting of new advertising regulations for adoption by state regulators. They are designed to meet complaints that many persons, the poor and elderly in particular, have been misled in buying the policies designed to supplement basic hospital insurance with extra cash.

The insurance companies involved deny any intention to deceive in their advertising.

Insurance departments in 19 states already have instituted or proposed curbs of varying degree on companies selling supplemental health insurance through the mail. Sanctions range from individual suspensions and fines to across-the-board advertising restrictions affecting all companies.

Joe B. Hunt, the Oklahoma insurance commissioner, told state citizens recently to "beware of buying two-bit mail-order insurance."

Karl Herrmann, the Washington commissioner, halted the advertising of three leading companies for a time this year, saying: "There is too much false, misleading and deceptive advertising to purchase 'Mickey Mouse' policies in this state."

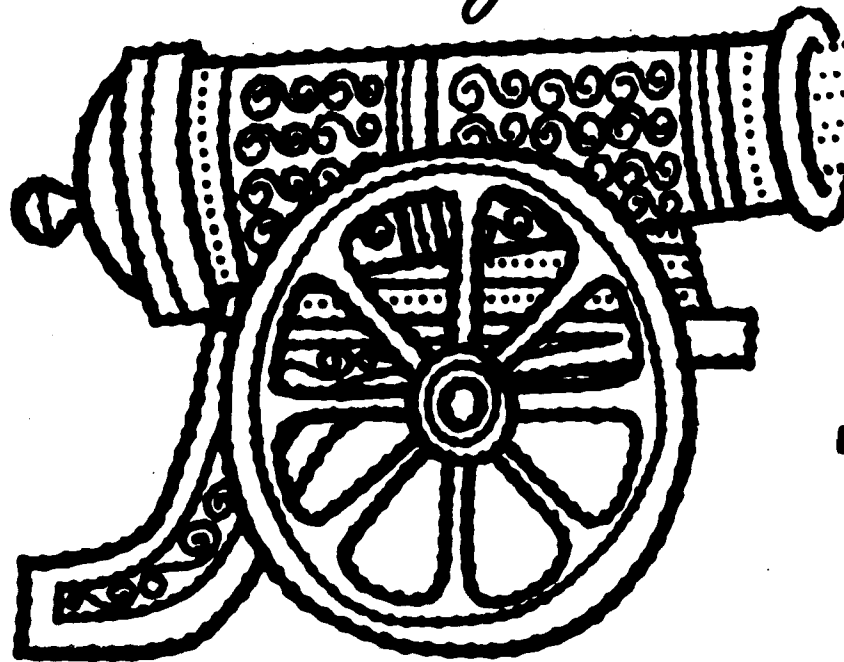

"There ought to be a basic threshold to prevent the sale of policies with benefits so low and so remote they are of no value," he said.

The three companies said they resolved their Washington difficulties within a few days or weeks and are again doing business in the state.

They are Union Fidelity Life Insurance of Philadelphia, Bankers Life and Casualty of Chicago, and National Liberty Corp. of Valley Forge, Pa., which sells its National Home health plans through two subsidiaries.

The hospitalization policies under fire typically offer benefits of $15 to $40 a day at a cost of between $50 and $100 a year. By comparison, hospitalization charges are approaching $100 a day.

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Logan residents are finding tombstones on their doorsteps. The police said Monday tombstones have been found on doorsteps at least once a week for the past several weeks. They said there were two such incidents Sunday. Officials said the grave markers are being stored in the police garage until they can find out where they came from.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Commerce Secretary Peter Peterson says recent surveys have shown that public confidence in businessmen is decreasing.

"This growing public hostility to business is at the root of your troubles," Peterson told delegates Monday at the 39th annual convention of the National Association of Food Chains.

The commerce secretary said the public feels that grocery chains make high profits that could be turned back to the consumer in the form of lower prices — but that this is not the case.

He said grocery executives should try to convince workers that the way to improve their standard of living is by increasing their productivity — not by trying for a greater share of corporate profits that don't exist.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Stephen Simmons got bumped as a candidate for homecoming queen at the University of Akron but he may have won the day for university males.

The 235-pound sophomore claims he was ruled out of the running because contest rules call for queen entrants to be women.

Not so, said the university's student supreme court after broad deliberation Monday.

The court said it was because the Norton, Ohio, queen aspirant didn't submit an application. Besides, said the Student Judiciary Committee of the Associated Student Government, Simmons' write-in votes were destroyed in accordance with past tradition. The court did suggest that any reference to sex be cut from qualifications for future queen candidates and that all votes, write-in or printed, be counted.
